How to create a Books@Ovid Panel for your users via the Athens administration tool

1. Log into your Athens Admin section via: https://admin.athens.ac.uk/index.php

2. Select MyAthens > Panel Editor as shown below:

3. In My Athens Panel Editor, select the Add a panel + option.

4. From the options given, choose the middle option named Blank web content panel

You will then see the following panel:

5. Leave the top three boxes ticked as shown above. Allowing the panel to show “Before log in” may allow your users to see it under NLH Evidence access.

6. In the Title field, type Browse Books@Ovid
7. In the Tooltip field, type Click on the button to browse your Ovid Books
8. Adding information in the Description field allows your users to decide if the resource is something they would like to access.
9. Finally, click the edit html content button in the Actions section. Remove everything that appears in the box,

Content unavailable

10. Paste the following complete line from “” to “”, including the tags:

```html
Browse Books@Ovid

11. Click the save html content button in the Actions section.

12. On the page that displays, test to see how the panel works. You are almost done, but before you finish, remember to publish your panel by selecting the option Publish this/these panels as shown below:

Publish these panels

This makes the option available for your users in the “My Athens” area. You can now see how this looks, so log into MyAthens with an active Athens user account for your Athens Org ID: https://auth.athensams.net/my/
When your users log in, they will see something similar to this:
Or they could select the option to add it as a panel as shown below:

If they choose the resource from the list,

it displays as follows in their MyAthens area:

If you used a Books@Ovid graphic instead of text, the panel will look like this:
